

Nicole Fanguy received her Associates Degree in Business & Marketing from Queens College, London. In Cambridge, England Nicole directed a home-based A.B.A. Lovaas replication site from 1998 under the direction of the London Early Autism Program. Nicole worked in a Private Kindergarten, including running her own home centered Day Care before moving into Lovaas and ABA after the diagnosis of her first child with autism. Prior to this, Nicole worked in the corporate sector, directing a very successful Professional Staff Placement company for many years in Surrey, England. Nicole has participated in several autism conferences in Europe and America. She has first hand knowledge of IEP's and the ARD process within the maze of the Special Education Department of Public Schools. Nicole continues to be a fierce advocate for Autism Awareness and believes absolutely that all children have the right to attend public school with accommodations to suit their needs. Nicole is committed to working with children with autism and their families, and using her knowledge and personal experience to make a positive impact for all. Nicole is delighted to be part of The Learning Lane, and resides in The Woodlands with her husband and two sons.
